About Us

Green Footprints is a nonprofit focused on elementary outdoor and environmental education. Green Footprints holds educational sessions in public schools across the United States, along with having partnerships with other environmental nonprofits and various government agencies. The nonprofit is headquartered in Portland, Oregon and has offices in Los Angeles, CA, San Francisco, CA, Seattle, WA, Anchorage, AK, Butte, MT, Denver, CO, Washington, D.C., and more planned locations in other states. Green Footprints utilizes two instructors per educational session: one Senior Instructor and one Junior Instructor. We also have high-school and college-level student organizations to aid in our mission. The educational sessions focus on outdoor ethics, environmental sustainability, and outdoor recreational practices. These topics are meant to increase elementary students' awareness of the outdoors and how they can be more sustainable in their lives and while participating in outdoor recreation. Most public school curriculums do not cover outdoor awareness and it is crucial that children learn proper outdoor ethics and practices at a young age.
